

"Music was created by God, as was every instrument, to be used to bring Him glory. All throughout the scriptures we read how important music is to God and to His creation," says Rick Heil, lead singer and front man of the band SONICFLOOD.

"In fact, the book of Psalms is entirely devoted to praising the Creator of the Universe in every situation with every kind of instrument. We are even commanded in the New Testament to sing and make melody with all our heart to the Lord and to address each other in psalms, hymns and spiritual songs (Col. 3:16 and Eph. 5:19)."

It is this desire and belief that is central to SONICFLOOD.

SONICFLOOD has undoubtedly made an impact on modern worship as we know it today. They have released eight albums since their debut in 1999, sold over two million records, and received numerous Dove awards and a Grammy nomination. Their brand of modern worship—guitar and drum driven praise has made a major impact on worshippers all over the world

Not content to spread their music and powerful message only here in the United States, SONICFLOOD has remained committed to spreading God's Word internationally, consistently touring all over the world, including India, Australia, Brazil, Canada, Malaysia, Mexico, Northern Ireland, Singapore, South Africa, Switzerland, Thailand, and Turkey.

At the heart of SONICFLOOD is a longing that transcends just making music; it is a longing to see people worship God wherever they are, geographically and spiritually.

"We want to see people falling in love with Jesus Christ through this amazing vehicle and gift we call music. May we see greater revelation of just how much God loves His creation and then press into that wonderful love with our worship!"

